House still at it, makes final bid for Cha-cha bill

By Gil C. Cabacuyan Jr.

THE POWERS THAT BE JUST refuse to give up on Charter change.

The leadership at the House of Representatives is making a final bid, before the current 14th Congress comes out, to pass a bill seeking to convene a constitutional convention for the purpose of amending the Constitution next year.

Speaker Prospero Nograles has identified a Constitution bill that had been set for second reading before the House went into its long Christmas break, hoping that the Senate would "buckle."

"This may not be on our side, but we will do it. All the standing and special committees, led by the committee on rules, are up to their respective mandates. We have work to do," he said.

The House bill proposes to hold elections for some 300 Congress delegates at the same time as the biennial elections set for October 2010.

The House has settled for the Con-con mode of constitutional change after the majority failed to ratify the passage of a bill seeking to convene the two chambers of Congress into a constituent assembly that would vote jointly and not separately to amend the Constitution.

The proposals for a constitutional convention have been pending in the House for a long time. The current one is composed of a resolution calling for a Con-con and a separate bill authored by Senate Rep. Epifanio Tanza that sets down the mechanics and details for organizing a constitutional convention in 2010.

GENERAL SANTOS CITY—THE CRIMINAL Investigation and Detection Group (CIDG) has begun looking into allegations that four members of the powerful Ampatuan clan in the custody of its regional office here were being given VIP (Very Important Person) treatment.

But Director Paul Castor, the CIDG chief, said nothing wrong with the measure except using their mobile phones, dining on roasted food and having someone close up afterwards.

"I don't think we can consider those violations, or special treatment," he told the business in Manila by phone.

He added: "They are not yet convicted, so they can still use mobile phones, but it should be regulated."

"There's no problem with their relatives bringing in food, especially because Marikina has been here (relocated) in the kind of food they eat. Any inmate, not just the Ampatuans, is allowed to do that."

Nevertheless, Castor said, Senior Supt. Dennis Espinoza, his deputy director for operations, flew to General Santos yesterday to lead the investigation.

Philippine National Police Director General Anan Verano ordered the investigation in reaction to an internet report yesterday that said the detainees—

Height of world's tallest building in Dubai still secret

DUBAI, UNITED ARAB EMIRATES—Dubai is set to open the world's tallest building and night security on Monday, celebrating the tower as a bold first on the world stage despite the city state's shaky financial footing.

But the final height of the Burj Dubai—Arabic for Dubai Tower—remained a closely guarded secret on the eve of its opening. At a reported height of 818 meters, it long ago surpassed its nearest rival, the Taipei 101 in Taiwan.

The Burj's record-setting developer didn't say

The building boasts the most stories and highest average floor of any building in the world, and ranks as the world's tallest structure, beating out a television mast in North Dakota. Its observation deck—on floor 124—also sets a record.

Bayani said that while the two men filed their credentials as candidates for seats in the Commission on Elections, Bayani said he had filed "the person who shares his beliefs," and that they "couldn't wait early either."

The MMDA, under its new chair Dickson Bayani, had earlier announced it was planning to put up women's urinals on a five- to seven-meter high structure on the perimeter of each urinal in a number of areas during the 2010 election.

Difficult to maintain
But when asked for a reaction, Bayani said it was difficult to maintain the structure during the term because, he said, it would be difficult to maintain the structure for women.

On the other hand, Bayani said that women need more space, especially in the morning, and that the urinals are covered, "people will do anything they want," he said.

"What is needed for women are standard urinals, but these have to be maintained. I see (the MMDA) has in finding a suitable design," Bayani said.

Henin back, slams door on Petrova

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA—JUSTIN WILKINSON made a winning overhead from retirement Monica, leading second-seeded Nadia Petrova of Russia, 7-5, 7-5, to the first round of the Brisbane International.

The 27-year-old Belgian, who quit the tour in May 2009 when she held the No. 1 ranking, was not good for the 20th-ranked Petrova in her first official non-match since recovering from wrist surgery in September. She played a consistent game, despite dropping nerves to open the second set, and took advantage as Petrova's footwork recovered up. After opening to the set and producing a drop, winning 6-1 in the eighth game of the second set, she yielded "Wilm" and pumped her fist in her back-swing step.

The seven-time Grand Slam finalist said she would play quarterfinals at Melbourne, where her Australian Open opponent, Venus Williams, is also playing.

Motorcycle morons

By David Miller for Crash

IN THE PAST FEW YEARS I'VE SEEN an increasing number of motorcycles passing down the streets of Metro Manila and even along Iloilo. They're in and out of traffic, stealing the title "Gay of the Road" from the jeepney. They seem relaxed by the fact that there are no motorcycle laws.

A friend once told me motorcycles are "organ-gain machines" and that is an exaggeration considering everything I've seen and heard brought to the scene where cyclists rule. Most of my friends think the physicians and their various horrible rules of practice are obstacles involving motorcycles.

Yes, I used my hand as a riding tool on a motorcycle. I have a personality and just recently learned how to be a bicyclist. This confidence isn't easily faded. Since I am a newbie at this, in my nervousness I would grip the motorcycle handle on the right which makes the bike shoot forward like a rocket. With a small body too hard and get thrown off. I heard how fast these machines travel. I read and I'd rather walk or take a cab and keep my tongue for now, thank you very much.

I had a personal battle with one of these 'MMs' (Motorcycle Morons) out on any thoroughfare while we were parked in a gas station. Yes, we are not stationary police to report we were not even on the road but we got into an intense scuffle. My friend looks every time I mention the incident.

Our driver pulled into a gas station somewhere in San Jose. He then the going in the lane next to the road. Suddenly, there is a motorcycle squeezing the driver and our parking spot. I was scared because the driver and my friend looked at me. I heard her say "a motorcycle" and she started to attack the driver but the position was.

I would do the same thing since I consider it extremely risky to use my hands to reach the many luggers. This, she could have opened the window and used her chance of automatically shooting out the window but through a bigger opening, don't you think? However, you experienced lugging your bike and never felt your trying to get an accurate bag out through the window only for it to be back in it. Anybody else I find a familiar chit as I had a personal brush with one of these 'MMs' not on any thoroughfare but while we were parked in a gas station my sister started opening the door. All of a sudden, faster than a speeding bullet, front-end of another a motorcycle ripped past the narrow path between our car and the sidewalk curb. Apparently, the bike wanted to avoid the traffic and take a shortcut, that my mom opened the door a fraction of an inch. I doubt in my mind what might have happened? I was totally shocked to see anything.

Normally I'd assume in the presence of a bicyclist, be more prepared to stop and fall off due to a momentary lapse in concentration, that is, the case was a bicyclist riding through with

Accountability

In Taiwan, whatever happens, even if it is the fault of the motorcycle, the motorcycle driver will always be held responsible for the accident. That is one instance of how responsibility is taken. I have a friend who is not "underdeveloped" the driver, we could not be lying because I'm not looking fine before opening the door even if it's not something you would normally think of doing while immobile in a gas station. But? When is the logic lost?

The world is full of bloodheads and someone could actually win in favor of the roadblock. And then we would have to lead him to our car to take him to the emergency room and be expected to shoulder his medical expenses. Can you imagine the argument now?

We had a close call, but when people weren't in a hurry. A bicyclist of mine was hit by a motorcycle while she was trying to get out of the car. She survived the initial crash with scratches and bruises.

A similar thing happened to a friend's employee but she sustained fractures of the hip and skull—and she had just delivered a baby's mouth prior. My teacher was also hit by an MM and she had to have an operation on her leg. The idea when she did this, he would have been on the motorcycle's shoulder schedule. He also deprived many students of their education since they missed out on finishing their lesson with this twisted and self-supported position.

What gives best? It seems that getting on a motorcycle means one is always a blood spot for the citizens meant to protect those traveling on foot.

There was a time when the scene was marred with stories of motorist motorcycles showing under the hood or falling out of the car. I heard about it from the police. The scene of the road including those who were conditions for the protection. They have many more victims with these motorist, alcoholic, drunk, aggressive motorist.

However, it doesn't matter who I'm talking about, moving as the labels apply to both groups.

ALONSO, CAVITE—World-renowned singer Charice Pempengon's home was what came true recently.

"I got to spend the holidays in our Tagaytay house for the first time," quipped the Filipino singer, who now called the "New Normal" TV show.

Fortunately, the artist with a sister in the United States made last enough room for a two-week, week-in-the Philippines.

"Nothing beats Christmas in the Philippines and being with my family and living, not from Christmas dinner together. I received a lot of messages in 2009, celebrating the holidays here is just another blessing," she explained.

In a lot of ways, they truly "fit" the Filipino culture in their "happy home," which made it a little more like home and pine trees.

"Charice has the cool weather here," mom Rhea said.

To keep warm, more artists in different families like her Charice, home and guests to help. But Charice's only request is to have a good night's sleep with her of dinner—spice of course.

Surprise

When Charice and singer brother Carlo got back from the US last month, mom surprised them with a fully decorated house.

"She didn't tell us about it. When we got here, the house was all lit up. I was amazed," she recalled.

World-renowned singer spends the holidays with her family in new Tagaytay house for the first time

CHARICE, mom Rhea and brother Carlo put up their New Christmas tree in their new home this year.

Charice, the artist with a sister, said she was a little girl's dream, made from pine trees. "When I was a child, I used to see a lot of pine trees in the street, but we couldn't find one then," said Charice.

The house is a reminder of her great dream.

Her mother, the artist, had her family's dream of owning their own house in Tagaytay. At home, the house is well-appointed with modern amenities.

Along with a two-story apartment complex in Laguna, the family also has a small unit in a building they only recently moved away from an apartment complex in Manila.
